

ABSTRACT

A novelty shipping container hollow inside to hold consumer contents. The container snaps apart to allow filling of the inside with gifts, candy, letters or other items. The container then snaps together securing the contents for shipment. A mailing label is attached to a designated area on the container. The container may then be shipped via regular U.S. postal carriers without a box or further packaging. The container may be shaped as an animal such as an owl or other objects such as a vase with flowers.